If he took the child to the corner, and at the time of the inquest the jury visited the spot, where the child was found. The body was buried at the cemetery.

Dr. Arthur J. Brown, examined the child and Dr. Kelchner had examined the child after it was found. There was a mark upon the face evidently caused by the rock in the culvert. It was of the feminine sex, had jet black hair, and had been in the water about forty-eight hours. There to attend, but it will be easily understood that the committee will be compelled to ask for due notice. Unless this is received and assignment cards forwarded, they will not be responsible for providing places of entertainment.

Fast Driving Stopped.

Two young men who came here from Portland some time ago were taking in the points of interest about the city last night in a handsome turnout belonging to Brown & Dillingham, and were driving at a very fast pace, attracting general attention as the horses ran through the streets.

were no marks which would indicate that the child had been strangled.

Mrs. Gaffney, of Bangor, testified that the respondents and the child had had a room at her house. The latter part of April when the child was about four weeks old the mother took it and started out saying that she was going to Old Town. A woman was to take care of the child for $8 a month. The mother did not seem to care much for the child about that time.

A. C. Hunkley, of Orono, testified to having found the child in the culvert, after its first discovery, and also that he had

They narrowly escaped the dipnetter, and were taken to the station. Officer O'Brien commanded them to hold up at Polo's corner, but they paid no attention and continued. They were obliged to return, however, for a list of them lost, whereupon the officer took command of the craft and hauled the ribbons over the horses to the police station, where the fellows were locked up. A bottle of liquor was found on one of them. The horses were covered with foam and were evidently stirred with their run about town. The two young men will answer to the charge of fast driving in court to-day.

Eastern Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary.
The clinics at the Eye and Ear Infirmary are growing in size and importance. The infirmary has been open four months and regarding the child. One story was that the child had fallen into the water and another that the child had been taken sick and died and she did not have $50 to pay for burying it.

Alske concluded of the evidence Judge Brett said that it was his duty to hold the respondents for trial at the August term.

In this time 861 visits have been made to the 100 rooms by patients suffering from eye and ear troubles. A large number of operations have been performed among them seven for the removal of cataract. Dr. McCann is attending to the duties of assistant surgeon, and Mr. O. B. Humphrey is acting as clinical assistant. These gentlemen together with the surgeon, Dr. Baxter, did more than enough to do in the time given for the clinics, and street surgery, and the laboratory.

The hardest duties that devolve upon the medical officers are to decide what people and they were accordingly committed to jail without bail.

AMUSEMENTS.

Alexander Salvini.

The approaching engagement of Salvini is creating a good deal of interest among all classes of theatre goers and there is likely to be a lively demand for tickets, which will be secured on sale this morning.

"Don Carlos," Dr. Baxter is the opening play, and will be followed on Friday and Saturday evenings by "A Child of Naples" and "The Three Guardsmen."

are deserving of free treatment and it must be understood and remembered that none will be received knowingly who are able to pay for treatment, as it is an injustice to the doctors to treat such people free, as it takes up the time allotted to the deserving ones.
